The Bead Coop Egg Hunt-

We're having an egg hunt on the Bead Coop! Clue have been hidden in various places around the site, find them, in the correct order, and email them to the address found with the correct solution to the last riddle, and if yours is the first one in--you win! We are giving prized all the way to 5th prize, so there is a chance for lots of winning here!

Simple rules!

- 1-The game starts November 1, 2002, and runs until we have a winner.
- 2-The winner will be the person who first emails the correct solutions to the riddles to the email address hidden in the last solution. The answers must not only be correct, but in the correct order to win!
- 3-You can use any method available on the site to solve the riddles
- 4-No hints will be given outside of the riddles themselves
- 5-This contest is for entertainment purposes. The prizes being awarded have all been donated by members of the Bead coop, or supporters of our site.
- 6-Winners will be posted here as they come in!
- 7-At the end of the contest, solutions will be posted to all riddles.
- 8-Bead Coop will not be held responsible for any loss or damage as a result of this contest, it is being held for entertainment purposes only, cash value of the prizes may change as new items are added to the prize offerings for the 5-places.
- 9-Have fun!

The first clue is:

“There is a little poem of sorts, that’s used for naming my flower’s parts! There’s swans, and a bottle and even more, I’ve grown in gardens forever and more.”

This is the list of prizes you can win!

BEADING TIP OF THE WEEK

Beads are not all the same shape or size even in the same grouping. Unless you are doing freeform or flower beading, choose each bead for its uniformity to its neighbors for a clean finished look. Especially when beading pictorial items.
